Subject: Inventory management
Posted by Bathsheba on Tue, 31 Jul 2012 02:10:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Did I miss a memo about inventory management? It looks like the all-markups-on-one-page page is gone. I find the setup for editing markups within each model very awkward to use.

I miss being able to see the markups for a model in all materials at the same time. Also being able to see markups for many models at the same time.

Worse, I can't push a single markup amount to all materials with one click, which makes this process take 20 times longer.

I think it would be great if something like the one-screen method came back. Or if the link has just been moved, can someone tell me where it is?

Thanks,

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by stonysmith on Tue, 31 Jul 2012 03:21:04 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I find the CSV markup management very much easier to use.

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by natalia on Fri, 03 Aug 2012 19:43:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Guys,

I've asked Brad about this, we'll get back to you shortly!

Best,
Natalia

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by thomashuang.net on Sat, 15 Sep 2012 14:00:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I find the old markup system was easier to use.
with the CSV file, the numbers have the ' in front of the numbers so I can't add the sum up to see what the total price is. I want to set the final price to say, $139 and the cost is $99.34. Now I have to calculate my markup in an external calculator to see what the final price will be.

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by stonysmith on Sat, 15 Sep 2012 14:33:12 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm a bit lost when you say that there is a single quote in front of the numbers.
I just re-downloaded my CSV file, and there are DOUBLE quotes around all the fields, but Excel 2010 strips those out when it loads the file.

Are you using Excel, Google Docs, or something else?

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by thomashuang.net on Sat, 15 Sep 2012 14:44:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I'm using open office.

Subject: Re: Inventory management
Posted by neuralfirings on Tue, 18 Sep 2012 01:42:54 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have a hack that I use to set my markup. I can apply %, % up to $0.99, or flat rate... but it requires you to go into each item individually.

For me, I only add one item every month or so, so it's not that bad... would you guys be interested in the hack?