The new polished coral red is perfect for this armband, it gives a beautiful texture and when you are touching it you can feel it more comfortable and wearable than before. His massive shape is hidden behind this new polished version, you must really to touch it!

Here some picture:

Hey Dario,
as always ... awesome!
I like your photos, too. Which camera do you use?

Hey Michael,

Thank you very much!

Well, I'm using my old mobile Nokia N8 ... , it has a 14,2 megapxl camera and it works fine, I guess. I use also two photo lamps with a very white light, then I add some lights and shadows adjustment using Corel PhotoPaint.

As soon as I can, I will buy a professional digital reflex camera, Canon or Nikon.

Your photos are very nice too, always clear and full of light with a very clear background. What camera are you using for?

Any suggestions?

Dario

Hi Dario,

it was made with a mobile phone? Wow!

I use an Olympus Pen EP2 System Camera. It is not a SLR camera but I can use my old Minolta and Canon lenses via an adapter. There is also a great tilt shift adapter available. Sometimes it's difficult to focus cause the old lenses have no autofocus, but it works nice for me anyway.

I use normal halogan lamps which make it always a little to yellow. I fix this by using Photoshop. Guess I'll buy some photo lights like yours!

Ahaha yes a mobile, but I have same focus issues sometime. About the lamps I will send you some links where you can find very nice lamps, backgrounds and other tools.

Hey guys

Thanks for sharing.

I would love to know more about your photo processes

Would you be interested in doing a tutorial for the blog each?

It would be great to see the difference between a mobile vs digital camera process..

Cheers

That armband is sweet! I really like the textures of it polished.

Also, same light box myself! Can't beat the $20 price tag on it. I use my iPhone too for some of my shots. Works great.

Hi Duann,

would be great to compare the photo working process.
I'll blog it in the next few days, too.
