Ordered some test pieces for my Filigree Chess Set. Just enough to make sure they all print successfully. I'm pretty happy with how they turned out, but some of the loops and swirls are so small it's really hard to clear all the excess powder out. I think I got most of it, though.

Again, very nice work, makes me want to play a game of chess.

Clever way to solve the "full chess set is too expensive" problem. Is it difficult to tell the various pieces apart?

Well, I certainly don't think it's hard, but I did make them so I may be biased.
