
Subject: Family Pendants

Posted by TurtlesAreCool on Sat, 15 Dec 2012 19:48:08 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

These are for my family members this year. I did make one for myself as well (I'm allowed to gift myself as well, right?) since part of the point is for all of us to have the same design on the back with a unique design on the front. The family tree on the back contains a few hidden symbols, and the letters are our first initials.

I'm fairly happy with how these came out. The back is properly flat now that I added support structure within the hollow inside of the pendant. However, I did get what appears to be some "pooling" of the bronze, leading to a different discoloration pattern on the flat backs of each pendant. I am guessing this is due to the flat back being more or less horizontal and facing up during the process. Any other thoughts?

Closeup:

Back:

File Attachments

1) 8-back.JPG, downloaded 219 times

2) 9-all_closeup.JPG, downloaded 219 times

Subject: Re: Family Pendants

Posted by Spozzefreund on Wed, 23 Jan 2013 00:38:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Great idea for christmas gifts!
