Hello, I am interested in having created a 1/35 scale ammunition railcar from ww2. If the undercarriage is difficult then I would be happy with just the bodies and I could do the undercarriage myself by conventional modelling. I do not have exact dimensions but I think I may be able to attain them if absolutely necessary as 2 examples still exist in the Czech Republic. I know of a person associated with the museum which might be able to get me measurements. I have included a pic and have additional pics also.

I am interested and believe can be helpful. I have been doing 3D modeling for over 8 years now and had done very complex things in the past.

See my site www.comestolife.com for examples of my modeling works.
