
Subject: Help me understand this forum?
Posted by Frick on Fri, 04 Jan 2013 17:21:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have been poking around this site trying to figure out if this would be the best place for a new to 3D printing guy should start asking question. When i say new i don't even have a printer yet i would like to buy one, but trying to do unbiased research.

So the question is; What is the best way to find out which printer is best for me?

Subject: Re: Help me understand this forum?
Posted by Youknowwho4eva on Fri, 04 Jan 2013 17:47:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

If you're in the market to buy your own printer, this probably isn't the "best" place to find that. This is a community built around designing for printing, and printing through Shapeways. Not to say that we can't help with the question of which printer to go with. That all depends on your budget, and what final product you are looking for.

Subject: Re: Help me understand this forum?
Posted by Frick on Sun, 06 Jan 2013 03:30:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I see. well when i get more into designing what i want i am sure i will be beak with many questions. Thanks for the reply.
