Hey everyone,

I've just joined and am starting to learn 3D design!

Anyone got any tips on which 3D software to design on - I have Blender and Sketchup but not sure which one I should concentrate my learning on...

Cheers

Kev

Take a tip from an experienced software manager: flip a coin.

I have found that if I take Blender and give it to person A and Sketchup to person B, they will both dig in and learn how to use them.

Then, about six months later... introduce each person to the other package.

They will both claim that you're their hero. "This new package is SO much easier to use!"
