hello.

i'm designing some cases and i already have some printed in the strong and flexible materials. i want to print a new ones but in black strong and flexible, do they have the same finish of the other flexible colors? or what material do you think is most suitable for cases?

Black SF should be similar to White SF. For cases, I'd used the other colors of SF or polished White as the surface is more of a finished product feeling. Seeing cases are handled often, you probably want to make them a little loose, and coat them in a finish that will keep them clean looking longer.
