

---

Subject: Beginner 3D modeller looking for practice.
Posted by Chengarda on Thu, 02 May 2013 07:22:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi, I'm a University Student in Australia who's just starting out with 3D modelling. To sharpen my skills, I'm looking for suggestions and reference images to pull forth into the third dimension. Due to a busy schedule, I usually model over weekends and holidays.

If you can't afford to hire a professional, experienced modeller, or you're just curious to see something modelled in 3D, I'm happy to have the experience, with no commitment to buy.

Anything I model goes into my store [<http://www.shapeways.com/shops/Chengarda>] , with a negotiable 10% markup on material cost. (Rounded down, Min $1)
I am happy to customise anything on request as well, with engraving, embossing, or personalised adjustments.

With apologies, I am unable to model for full-colour sandstone (as yet), or using third-party Intellectual Property.

---

---

Subject: Re: Beginner 3D modeller looking for practice.
Posted by mpieters95 on Tue, 07 May 2013 21:46:03 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Hi,
Ik would like to create a small (easy) Robot-face using a reference picture.
Would you like to help me?
This is a picture showing the robot-face I want to use!
http://www.nultweevier.nl/userfiles/nieuws2/robin\_de\_robot.jpg

Please send me a PM!

Thanks

---