Hey folks. I'm new to the forum, and going to be looking around for a bit. I am interested in mechanical/sci-fi modeling, and am weighing the options of scratch-building my models as opposed to CADing them and having them printed out. If I can get the prices down then I will probably have my masters printed out, however that will require me finishing a project first. As I develop quesitons I will be back in and out, but fo rhte most part I guess I will be lurking in the background until I see something to come out at. Thanks, and take care all.
