

---

Subject: I Have A Few!

Posted by BITGEM on Tue, 28 May 2013 09:44:00 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Firstly there is the old Web Cam Privacy Screen for both Mac and Laptop

The idea behind it is that if you like to work with your underwear wrapped around your head at home like I do most of the time... and don't want some ratters to record a video of that and post it on YouTube, then you'd be on the safe side with this covering the lens of your webcam. Because let's be honest. When you are concentrating on your screen, would you really notice the light of your webcam come on?

Then there is a larger version of My Little Pony Girl

I made a smaller version a while ago because I always wanted to make a cartoony style girl character and taking one of the my little pony characters and turning her into a Shane Glines inspired sculpt seemed like the perfect idea. The small one turned out well, but I really wanted a little more weight and detail so I increased the size of the sculpture and I have to say I am really happy with the result.

And a larger version of Aleysha

I made this figurine quite a while ago as part of anatomy studies and practicing sculpting. The new larger print in WSF still does not show the full level of detail the model has, but the overall shape and larger anatomical structures come out quite well. Perhaps it will be of use to someone looking for a reference of a (admittedly exaggerated) female body or it may just be a nice figurine to have on your desk.

For more models and other knickknacks drop by at my shop

Cheers!

---