I have an idea for a tabletop game and would like to create an actual copy... not to publish or sale, as it would require copyright royalties, but simply to play with my friends. this game will require approximately 200 miniatures of standard gaming size which I understand to be around 25mm-28mm. if you paint as well I would pay extra for that, otherwise I could paint it myself or simply pay someone else to do that. I realize that you will need more information than this for an exact quote but if you can give me a ballpark price that would be nice. and than we can talk more details of this project. the price is not an issue as long as it is within reason for the work required. thanks, matt
