There are many pages - for example the materials page - which I seem to only be able to find from a forum post and a link buried deep in the getting started page... I also only just found out there is a blog, which I could also only find through a forum post. I think that you have so much to offer and so much of interest and yet I can't find most of it because it is in weird places. Please just move things or add links as I struggle to find these things time after time.

I second that the blog should be available from the main site menu bar.
