There are two things that annoys me with the the (web)design of "Manage Template Details". If I want to change anything, I have to click "Manage Template Details", then unpublish the model as a template, and then re-click the "Manage Template Details". There should be a "view" and a edit button. The edit button should unpublish the model and take me to the webforms where I can edit the details - with one click instead of 3 clicks. The view should just unhide the template details.

Then there is the "+" button next to the last value. It is a bit ambiguous, because will it add the value or will it give me a new value. It turns out that it gives me a new value.

But the last value always have the "+" button next to it, so I cannot delete it, because it doesn't have a trashcan next to it.

Hope you'll fix these minor web-design details.

Thanks for your always great service!

Artificial / Anders:)
