
Subject: Army of FUD Part II

Posted by CGD on Fri, 13 May 2011 12:17:57 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

And here are some small soldiers in FUD. Models in 1:144, the figure measures 12mm standing upright. The pin is for scale, which measures 38mm or 1.5 in in length (but some of it goes into the sticky putty. And yes, those are my finger prints on the putty).:

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II

Posted by Nane on Fri, 13 May 2011 13:34:17 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Oh sweet, It was impossible to do proportionate figures this small before and now not only can you do them but perfectly as well, thank you for sharing and good work!

(by proportionate I mean that even for 20mm minis you would have to thicken the limbs and wrists on non clothed figures so they would look kind of silly etc, .3mm wall is so sweet it isn't even funny)

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II

Posted by CGD on Fri, 13 May 2011 15:31:51 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

RogersX wrote on Fri, 13 May 2011 13:34Oh sweet, It was impossible to do proportionate figures this small before and now not only can you do them but perfectly as well, thank you for sharing and good work!

(by proportionate I mean that even for 20mm minis you would have to thicken the limbs and wrists on non clothed figures so they would look kind of silly etc, .3mm wall is so sweet it isn't even funny)

Thanks RogerX!

Yes, I've waited for ages to do a not "silly looking, big head, cartoon-ish" figure. If FUD isn't here soon enough, I'll have to print the figures in silver and then re-cast them...

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by fx on Fri, 13 May 2011 16:10:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That looks great ! After seeing these figures (great modeling, by the way!) I'm quite sure my railway parts will look perfect !
Just a question: did you get the parts in the promised 10 working days or did it take a bit longer ?

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by CGD on Fri, 13 May 2011 16:18:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

fx wrote on Fri, 13 May 2011 16:10: That looks great ! After seeing these figures (great modeling, by the way!) I'm quite sure my railway parts will look perfect !
Just a question: did you get the parts in the promised 10 working days or did it take a bit longer ?

Hi fx,

The package took longer to arrive and also incomplete. But thanks to Shapeways' CS, things are fixed.

Something strange happened today though. I received an email telling me my second batch of figures will be delayed. Then tonight I got another message telling me that the order is in production. Five minutes later, another email said the order has been shipped!!

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by Nane on Fri, 13 May 2011 16:43:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

CGD wrote on Fri, 13 May 2011 16:18: Something strange happened today though. I received an email telling me my second batch of figures will be delayed. Then tonight I got another message telling me that the order is in production. Five minutes later, another email said the order has been shipped!!

North Pole Special Ops Elves with time machines wreaking havoc at Shapeways! Santa is jealous Shapeways is usurping his toy making monarchy!

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by stop4stuff on Sat, 14 May 2011 08:48:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Awesome models CGD!

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by lensman on Tue, 17 May 2011 18:35:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

CGD wrote on Fri, 13 May 2011 12:17... The pin is for scale, which measures 38mm or 1.5 in in length (but some of it goes into the sticky putty. And yes, those are my finger prints on the putty).:

For a brief moment there I thought you'd stuck the pin IN your thumb! True artistic dedication!

By the way did you model these with that extra bit on the bottom of each model or did they come like that?

Glenn

Subject: Re: Army of FUD Part II
Posted by CGD on Wed, 18 May 2011 01:54:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

lensman wrote on Tue, 17 May 2011 18:35

For a brief moment there I thought you'd stuck the pin IN your thumb! True artistic dedication!

Not a bad idea. Cast a thumb model and use as pin cushion.

lensman wrote on Tue, 17 May 2011 18:35

By the way did you model these with that extra bit on the bottom of each model or did they come like that?

Glenn

They are detachable foot plates. If Shapeways can add them automatically, I'll be very very happy!

CGD
