Shapeways comes through again and I see you have now added a "Default Material" option on the model page. I have long wanted this in order to choose what material price is shown in the thumbnails when someone browses models; as I've said before if a user sees a ring at $30 in s/steel and another at $6 in WSF they may simply not bother clicking through on the s/s one.

Thanks.

It appears to be a set refresh thing, I'll get Ben on it.

I'm glad to hear you like this, Lensman! Thanks for the feedback.

And no, it's neither cache nor VAT.

Yes, of course we tested it, and we did not see any problems like this in that process. I've shared your bug report with my QA team and they'll be analyzing it right away.

I appreciate you sharing bug and problem reports with us, but I do not think a sarcastic tone is beneficial on our forum. I want to encourage a welcoming environment and constructive conversation (including criticism). This is better for everybody involved.
