Hey there!

I'm Henrieke, a 21 year old female cartoon artist from the Netherlands.
I've been interested in 3D printing since I was a kid, and though I have been following Shapeways for quite a while now I only just found out I'm located only 3 miles (!!) from their location in Eindhoven. How about that!

I'm an illustrator and cartoon artist, I mostly work the old fashioned way, with ink, brush, pencil and paper. My drawing style is also traditional, I'm mostly inspired by artwork from the 30s-50s. I have never tried 3D modeling on the computer yet, mostly because my hardware is horribly outdated. I hope to buy a graphics card soon that makes modeling possible, because my hands are itching!

I do occasionally make things in 3D for my own enjoyment, from small sculptures to puppets to full-body costumes. Making puppets and costumes is very interesting and challenging, not only because you get to create a character in three dimensions, but because it has to be wearable, durable and be brought to life as well!

Some costume heads I've made:

If you're interested in my other artwork, you can see some here: <http://henriekeg.blogspot.com/> (includes drawings, sculptures and some other stuff)

Anyway, more on topic...

Recently a friend of mine (found on here as Brian123) turned my lemur character, Kiki, into a 3D model with the intention of printing it here. He stayed exceptionally close to my artwork, and we both ordered a test print from shapeways, which should arrive in a week or so. After that we can see what could be changed on the model to make it look best as a 3D print, and work out a final post so we can put up an actual figurine for sale. I'm very excited to see the end result!
See the attachment for Brian's 3D model. <http://shpws.me/3kG0>

This is the original artwork it was based on:

Sorry for the long introduction, I just want to say I really love this site and I hope to become an actual contributor soon!

Welcome! If you want to turn more of your puppets, sculptures, all over 3D items into models, check out 123D Catch <http://www.123dapp.com/catch> formally photofly. You can take pictures of your existing work and create a 3D model from it.
