Being a cuber, I heard of this site quite often. It wasn't until this year did I decide to make an account. So far I have only bought one item, but I like this site already. I admire the greats like Oskar Van Deventer, David Pitcher, Gregoire Pfennig, Tom Vander Zanden, or Timur Evbatyrov. I might plan on designing here in the future, but as for now, I am a buyer and enthusiast. People always look at shapeway's prices and call it overpriced. But once I tell them what hard labor and tedious detail they have to go through to get a wonderful product to the buyer, they start to understand. Thanks for reading, and this is Matt MasterMind signing out.

P.S. MattoMasutaMaindo is Japanese, and literally translates out to "Matt MasterMind". I chose this because... to be honest it just sounds cool!

Edit: Sorry I posted 3 times, I had a computer problem at the time of posting this!

Well welcome Mr Mastermind

Enjoy your stay at Shapeways!

As for the people that do not know these names, look around at Shapeways for "rubiks puzzles" you will most likely find their puzzles
